The resource person, Dr Seram Raghmani Singh, Associate Professor, Dept of Botany spoke on the theme building a shared future for all life for the special event of the International Day for Biodiversity. He highlighted some of the reasons why Manipur is known for its Dzuko and Shirui lilies. He made the point that valuable species are disappearing in such a way that it concerns us. The loss of species in this manner ensures the extinction of certain therapeutic plants from Manipur's soil. He believes that plants, animals, and other living organisms are necessary components for the successful operation of our ecosystems. Dr. Bd Thumdal, the Principal of this College, presided over the seminar, which was attended by students, teaching and non-teaching staff.
